PREFACE.

GENEALOGY is so generally called useless, that the producers of genealogical books most always feel called upon to defend themselves. I wish to state here simply my own opinions in the matter. I fully believe that carelessness of the past almost always accompanies carelessness of the future, and an interest in the past, thoughtfulness for the future. To see the truth most plainly, compare the extremes of society. On the one hand, the great body of criminals, who indulge in present pleasures without a thought of the consequences to themselves or others—what do or can they care for the memory of father and grandfather? On the other hand—those whose aim it is to lead useful and noble lives, who are ready to give up present pleasure for future advantage, who conduct their daily actions with a view to future results—how can such fail to have an interest in the causes which have preceded present results? Only those who live for the present alone, and are careless of the inheritance they leave their offspring, can consistently be indifferent to the lives of the ancestors from whom they inherited their own characters.

To the question so often asked, “What good will it do?” I say, when I speak plainly, “Make it personal.” And when it is then asked, “What good will it do me?” I reply, “If you take no more interest in it than you do now, it will do you no good. Like everything else, no benefit can be derived from it until it is appropriated. If you scoff at it, as some others scoff at the sciences, music, and painting, you will gain no more benefit from the one than they do from the other. But if you cultivate the spirit of the antiquary, and study cause and effect in the past, with a view to imitating the good and avoiding the bad, you will possess yourself of one of the most ennobling influences that exists outside of religion.”

This volume I do not offer as a subject, but only as a means, of genealogical study, chiefly for the benefit of those members of future generations who may wish to take lessons from the past, who might be unable, had not this work been done now, even to learn who their forefathers were. To those who wish to reap the true benefits of genealogy, this book will be (like a dictionary in other studies) but an aid to their search into the inner lives of their forefathers.

My own interest in genealogy, although I am naturally inclined to such things, did not become very manifest until the winter of 1878-9. In a record book which my great-grandfather, Samuel Tompson, kept of his doings as trial justice, was recorded an account of his descent, through a long line of Harvard graduates and "Orthodox" clergymen, from the original Tompson immigrant, the first minister of Braintree, Mass. This book came into my hands at the time mentioned, and I conceived the idea of tracing all my ancestors back to their immigration. I had heard of family trees, and thought to reverse it so as to hold all my ancestors, who, of course, doubled in number each generation that I traced back. However, I found that the tree would not answer the purpose very well, and finally conceived the "cartwheel," a number of concentric circles of which the inner was intended for my own name; the next outer divided into two parts, for my parents; the next into four, for my grandparents, and so on. I have since found that this contrivance has been in use many years. In my own chart, when made, I filled in the single pedigree then in my possession, and at once went to work, with the zeal that such a pastime always creates, to fill it out. My mother's ancestorage had been thoroughly worked out by one of her brothers, my father's mother was a daughter of Samuel Tompson, Esq., mentioned above, and the only quarter of my chart in which my research was original, was that belonging to the ancestors of my lineal grandfather, Storer Libby. I traced his pedigree to his great-grandfather, Lieut. Andrew Libby, and then came to a standstill. I despaired of ever learning his parentage, and began to trace the generations of his descendants, being all of the Libby family that I knew to be related to me. I had not proceeded far, however, when I learned from a source unknown before, that Lieut. Andrew Libby was a son of Matthew Libby, who was a son of John Libby, the first of the name in this country, and from whom I supposed all of the name descended. So I began to collect records of the whole family, with the thought that I might some day publish them. In July, 1879, shortly after my graduation from the High School, I called at the law office of Charles F. Libby, Esq., of my own city, at that time a stranger to me, and proposed that he should pay my expenses in visiting the towns of Alfred, Me., and Exeter, N. H., where are deposited the probate records, records of deeds, and court records, for the towns in which the early generations of the family had resided; and that I should take special pains to trace his pedigree. Much to my satisfaction, and somewhat to my surprise, (I was then not eighteen years old), Mr. Libby accepted my proposition, and at his expense I spent several weeks in the places named, and in visiting various aged members of the family. The result of this search was the strong conviction that a few years would make it impossible to trace the genealogy of the family, and the thought of the family's becoming a great number of individuals, impossible to connect with their early ancestors and with each other, first suggested the idea of staying from college a year, and devoting my time to collecting the records of the family. I trace thus fully the origin of the book for the satisfaction of the curious.

The lack of records in the early generations, which is very obvious when compared with genealogies of Massachusetts families, is a common defect in Maine genealogies. No record of the birth or death of any member of the family was made, so far as is now known, until after the rise of the eighteenth century. No deaths, and only four births, occurring in the seventeenth century, are found recorded.

A large portion of the family has been inclined to ask the question alluded to above, "What good will it do?" and almost all of the errors and omissions in the later generations are due to the carelessness or negligence of those immediately concerned. I hope the offspring of those persons, when, in future years, they are vexed at these defects, will look twice at this last sentence before attributing them to me.

Yet I by no means wish to complain of a lack of support. All members of the family have given me what information they could when called upon by me in person, and a large portion has replied, with more or less promptness and care, to my inquiries by mail. I used an original version of Abraham Lincoln's boyhood ballad, "If at first you don't succeed, write, write again," and very few have persisted in refusing my appeals. In a financial point of view, my support has been still better. The family is so numerous, and so many of its members have subscribed for the book, that there is the prospect of an anomaly—that of a family history, thoroughly prepared, paying not only its cost, but fair compensation for the compiler's time. Those who have contributed or subscribed twenty-five dollars and upward, are the following:

Mr. Arthur A. Libby of Chicago, Ill.,	$150.00
Charles F. Libby, Esq., of Portland, Me.,	50.00
Mr. H. J. Libby of Portland, Me.,	50.00
Dr. H. W. Libbey of Boston, Mass.,	50.00

Mr. John Henry Smith of Salt Lake City, Utah,	25.00

The spelling of the name has been a matter of constant vexation to me. Starting with the intention of following the usual plan of spelling the name of each individual as he himself spelt it, I was met at the outset by the fact that many of the early generations left nothing to show how they spelled their own names, and that many, in different documents, spelled their names in different ways with seeming indifference. Also in the later generations, and especially in the present day, the most unwarranted freedom has been used in adopting whatever spelling strikes the individual fancy. Many are so careless as not to adopt any particular spelling, and use one one year, and another the next, while frequently, in writing to me, persons have spelled their name in two ways in one letter. To have carried out my original plan would have demanded an almost endless amount of search and inquiry, and the result, to a great extent, must have consisted of guess-work. I have, therefore, used the true spelling of the name throughout the book, giving in the introduction such an account as I can of the general drift of the spelling in the different families and localities.

The method of numbering grew out of my manner of arranging the records during the compilation. The same method may have been used by others, but not to my knowledge. I am aware that in introducing an unusual method I lay myself open to criticism, and I fear that I shall be most severely criticised by those who take the least trouble to master the plan. To myself its only disadvantage is that a special number cannot be found quite so readily as in some other methods, but it affords many satisfactions which they do not. I believe that all who make themselves familiar with it will find it equally satisfactory. It has the further advantage of saving fully one-tenth part of the space, which, in a book of this sort, is an important feature.

The system of indexing the christian names of the family, giving the place of residence, and the blank form for family records, have never been used before so far as I know. My purpose in forming the index was to make it possible for the most casual acquaintance to find readily any one of the family, at the same time preserving economy of space. By this method, all, or nearly all the family are so distinguished in the index that anyone can readily recognize in the index itself the name he is in search of. It is recommended that in keeping the family records in the blank forms, the system of numbering be continued, and that greater pains be taken in the future than has been in the past, to keep an absolutely complete record of all births, marriages, and deaths.

The gratitude of all that derive any satisfaction from this book is due to Charles F. Libby, Esq.,* of this city. It was he that gave me my first encouragement; it was he that paid my expenses during my first extended searches; it was to him that I first mentioned my project of a book, and he first suggested a method of raising funds; it was from him and from others at his personal solicitation that the funds were obtained to pay for the researches in England; and, finally, it was he that lent me his name in the contract with the printers, when I, being a minor under guardianship, would have been put to some trouble to perfect the contract otherwise. Throughout the work his large influence has been cast in my favor, and has done much to render the work a financial success. Without his encouragement I should never have undertaken it. But while Mr. Libby is so intimately connected with the history of the book, it is due him to say that he has had nothing whatever to do with the compilation, arranging, and printing, and that all mistakes of judgment and execution in those particulars are chargeable to myself alone. His action in the matter merits a faultless production, which I can only regret this falls so far short of being.

*At this last moment, I have the pleasure of adding to Mr. Libby's record his nomination by the Republicans for Mayor of Portland. It is conceded by his opponents that he will be elected.

I have to acknowledge the assistance of Mrs. Mary B. L. Dowst of Epsom, N. H., Mr. P. Rand Libby of Gilford, N. H., Mr. Henry A. Libbey of Machiasport, Me., Mr. Alonzo S. Libbey of Berlin, Vt., Mr. Charles Libby of Berwick, Me., Mr. Henry F. Libby of Pittsfield, Me., Mr. Wm. P. Libby of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mrs. Jane S. Osgood, and others to a greater number than I can mention, for special assistance in their own branches, and in some cases in other branches of the family. My work in Rye, N. H., was materially lightened by research made while in college by Mr. Jonas M. Libbey of New York. The persons who have furnished me the most valuable traditional lore are Mrs. Laura McKenney of Gorham, Rev. Peter Libby of Buxton, and the Misses Eunice and Lois Libby of Scarborough. I was much aided by a quite complete genealogy of the families in Kittery, now Eliot, prepared by Mr. William Fogg, and now in possession of Dr. John S. H. Fogg of South Boston, who kindly furnished me a copy of it. William M. Sargent, Esq., and Mr. S. M. Watson, Librarian of the Public Library, kindly allowed me the use of their copies of the Scarborough records; the former first called my attention to the petition given on page 24, and the latter gave me valuable assistance in his position as librarian. I have gained assistance from the collections of the Hon. Joseph Dow of Hampton, N. H., the Hon. Thomas Moulton of Porter, Me., Mr. Thomas J. Parsons of Rye, N. H., and the Rev. A. H. Quint of Dover, N. H., and have copied freely from all published matter. It is a pleasure to me to testify to the almost universal courtesy I have received at the hands of the custodians of records, both public and private, to which I have had need to refer.

The portraits have nearly all been furnished at my personal solicitation, and in most cases the expense has been borne wholly by those most nearly interested.

In closing I must express my indebtedness to the printers, Messrs. B. Thurston & Co. Besides the mechanical execution of the work, which will speak for itself, they have corrected a great many defects in the copy, resulting from my inexperience and other causes, and have responded nobly to the unusual call made upon them in printing a work for so poorly qualified a writer.

NOTICE.

MUCH interesting matter has been left out for want of room; many persons are but very briefly mentioned for lack of information; many records are defective. It is hoped that at some future day a much more full and complete history of the family will be published.

Therefore, send in the correction of every mistake you discover; send in every date of birth, marriage, or death, that you can find out from time to time; send every additional fact that would be interesting if the history should fill three or four volumes.

The new history will not be published for many years, but now is the time, while our aged people are yet with us, to perfect our history and records. Remember that even one date is worth sending. Let this notice stay here, so that all that read the book may know where to send more facts. Address

EXPLANATIONS.

The NUMBERS used here take the place of what is usually given in words in two lines for each head of a family; it follows that no intelligent use of this book can be made without first mastering the system of numbering.

The method may be simply stated as follows:

- 1 The immigrant has no number.
- 2 The number of each child of the immigrant is the figure which represents his position in the family.—First child, 1; second child, 2, etc.
- 3 The number of each member of the following generations is formed by adding to his father's number the number representing his own position among his father's children. The immigrant's oldest child's oldest child is 1-1; and his second child, 1-2. The immigrant's fifth child's oldest child is 5-1; and his second, 5-2, etc. The numbers of the later generations are formed in the same way.

To illustrate by the compiler's own pedigree: On page 25 it will be seen that Matthew Libby was the immigrant's eleventh son. Turning over to the second generation, there will be found in large figures in the middle of the page, the number 11, and under that number will be found an account of Matthew Libby, and a list of his children. It will be seen that his seventh child was Andrew Libby, and his number must be 11-7. Turning to the third generation, there will be found on page 52 the number 11-7, in the middle of the page as before, and under it an account of Andrew Libby, and a list of his children. The second child was Joshua Libby, and, in the fourth generation, his name will be found, on page 99, under the number 11-7-2. An account of Joshua Libby's fourth son, Matthias, with a list of his children, will be found in the fifth generation, under his proper number, 11-7-2-4, on page 192. Matthias Libby's eighth child, Storer Libby, the compiler's grandfather, will be found in the next generation, on page 412, under his number, 11-7-2-4-8, and in that place will be found an account of all his children and grandchildren except the family of the eldest son, who, having grandchildren of his own, is carried forward to the next generation. And so with the other branches of the family. Any member of the family who does not know his pedigree, will have first to find his own name, by means of the index, and then, having learned his number, can trace his line either backward, or, as above, downward. Beside this use of tracing backward and forward, which is all that numbers are usually used for, the numbers in this case afford other information, as follows:

First. Each number shows the generation of the person to which it belongs. The number of numbers in the number of each individual is one less than the number of his generation. Thus Matthew Libby, 11, is of the second generation; Andrew Libby, 11-7, is of the third generation; Joshua Libby, 11-7-2, is of the fourth generation, and so on.

Second. The number of any individual shows the number of each one of his ancestors. Thus, from the number of Storer Libby, 11-7-2-4-8, it is evident that his father was 11-7-2-4; his grandfather, 11-7-2; his great-grandfather, 11-7; his great-great-grandfather, 11; and his great-great-great-grandfather, the immigrant. So, knowing the number of any individual, it is possible to turn directly to his ancestor in any generation.

Third. The number of each individual shows his relation, either to the persons whose records precede or follow, or to any other person whose kinship it is desired to trace. For instance, where two members of the family intermarry, the relationship between them can be at once learned from their numbers. The following table will illustrate.

Storer Libby,	11-7-2-4-8.	}	}	brothers.
Edward Libby,	11-7-2-4-6.
Joshua Libby,	11-7-2-6-2.	}	}	cousins.
Andrew Libby,	11-7-8-2-6.
Amzi Libby,	11-9-5-3-1.	}	}	second-cousins.
Elias Libby,	5-7-8-1-1.
Isaac H. Libby,	5-7-8-1-9-8.	}	}	third-cousins.
Moses Libby,	5-7-8-2.
Luther Libby,	5-7-11-3-1.	}	}	fourth-cousins.
Joshua Libby,	11-7-2.
				uncle and nephew.
				grand-nephew and great-uncle.
				cousin-uncle and cousin-nephew.
				second-cousin-grand-nephew, and second-cousin-great-uncle.

Fourth. Each branch of the family is distinguished from the others by the numbers. Thus the numbers of all the offspring of Henry Libby of Scarborough begin with 5. All the numbers of the offspring of his son, Lieut. Samuel Libby, begin with 5-2. All the descendants of the first Nathaniel Libby of Berwick begin their numbers with 11-9. All the offspring of Dea. Joshua Libby of Scarborough begin their numbers with 11-7-2. And so of each branch of the family.

INTRODUCTION.

IN ENGLAND.

THE Libby family is unquestionably of humble origin. The earliest mention of the name that has been found is in the herald's visitation of Oxfordshire for 1574. It there appears that, "Richard Libbe of Taston. in Coun. Devon, Gent., married Bridgett daughter and one of the heirs of ——— Justice of Readinge in County Berk., Gent., and by her had yssue Richard, Mary, married to Robert Fitch of Hasley in Coun. Warv. and Elizabeth married to Ninian Coxon. Cittizen of London." The son Richard married Joane, daughter of John Corker of Checkenden in Oxfordshire, and settled in that place. He was a young man when the visitation of 1574 was made. This family was afterward "long settled at Whitechurch in Oxfordshire, where they were lords of the manor of Hardwick." Its pedigree has been worked out very thoroughly by Col. Joseph L. Chester, LL.D., D.C.L., and it is certain that the American family did not spring from that source. The family is mentioned for the reason that it was the only one that belonged to the landed gentry in early times, and the pre-eminence of this family seems to have dated only from the marriage of the first Richard Libbe with the daughter of a justice. Had the grandfather of Richard Libbe of Checkenden been of the same social rank as himself, he would not have begun his pedigree with his own father.

The name seems to have belonged either in Cornwall or Devon. The Oxfordshire family, the earliest, as has been said, of which mention is found, evidently sprang from the latter county. According to Col. Chester, the only wills of the name, deposited at London, beside those of the Oxfordshire family, are those of William Libbye and Henry Libby, proved in 1653 and 1655, and both of these men belonged in Cornwall, where the name still abounds. The simple circumstances of the emigration of the originator of the American family make it supposable that he came from the neighborhood of Devon or Cornwall. The tradition among his descendants is also that he was from the West of England. These, with other less important circumstances, render it reasonably certain that the family belonged either in East Cornwall or West Devon. Whether it is of Saxon or Welch origin, or whether (as is not likely) it springs from some French immigrant that crossed over to engage in tin mining or the fisheries, will probably never be more than a matter of conjecture.

CHARACTERISTICS.

"Of the people" from the start, the family has retained in a very remarkable degree, the position which it held when it first emerged from the mists of early times. With scarcely any exception, its members have been strikingly devoid of ambition for power, place, and wealth. Contented with the enjoyment of present happiness, they have willingly obeyed the instruction, "be not anxious for the morrow;" and have been firm believers in the doctrine that "sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Avoiding the responsibilities, rather than seeking the honor of public office, they have been satisfied with the happiness of their own homes, and with but few exceptions each person has been known only in his own locality. Inclining to manual, rather than mental labor, they have seldom gained more than the rudiments of education, so that even now our colleges show but few graduates of the name, and most of those in late years. As will be seen, the story of almost every individual of the family is but one of quiet effort to make for himself a home. The daily wants supplied, nothing further is desired. It is indeed remarkable that in so numerous a family there is no person of national fame, no one who has figured largely in history, no one who has won renown in letters, nor in the arts.

Yet, as a family, they have been largely respected by their neighbors as men of sterling worth, and uprightness and honesty of character. They have generally belonged to that law-abiding class which forms the bone and muscle of a nation, content to render the wise efforts of others effective by its hearty support, and willing to concede all the glory to the leader. The family numbers its Revolutionary soldiers by scores, and many hundreds risked their lives for their country in the late war. In Maine alone there were two hundred and fifty-six enlistments. They are, as a family, very devout, and have figured much more largely in the religious than in the civil institutions of the communities in which they have lived. The family has abounded in Christian ministers, elders, and deacons, while generation after generation has died in the faith. There are of course black sheep in every flock, and in this as others, but so few have been the criminals, and so generally have the helpless ones been supported by their own relatives, that even in Maine, where the family is so numerous as to rank with the Smiths and Browns, it has been remarked by many to the compiler of this volume, that they never knew of a criminal nor a pauper named Libby.

SPELLING OF THE NAME.

As written by strangers, the manners of spelling the name have been almost endless; but the methods that have been used by the members themselves of the American family are thought to be only the following:

Libby	Libbie	Lebby
Libbey	Libbe	Lebbe
Libbee	Lebby	Lebbe

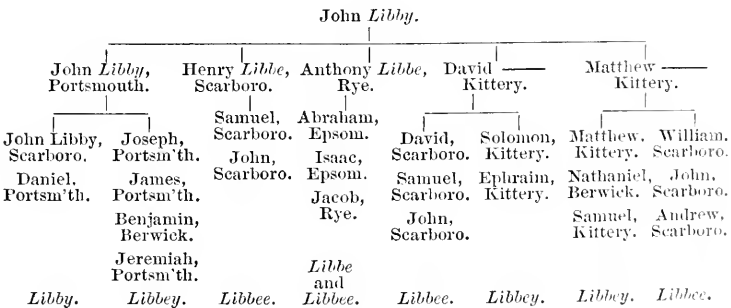

Those which exist to-day are:

Libby	Libbee	Lebby
Libbey	Libbie

The immigrant has left no original signature, and it cannot be known for certainty how he spelled his own name. Probably the best authority is John Winter, who came from the same part of England as himself. He spelled it Libby, which spelling was early in use in England, and now is, and has long been, the only form used. Of the other forms that have been used in this country, the only one ever used in England is Libbe. Hence, of the spellings now in use, the only one that has continental precedence is Libby.

Of the immigrant's eight sons, two left no signatures; three, reared in the midst of Indian wars, never learned to write; and, of the other three, John spelled his name Libby, and Henry and Anthony used Libbe.

Among the grandsons the spelling assumed more varieties than it has ever had since. Up to 1750, the family was chiefly confined to Scarborough, Falmouth, Kittery, (now Eliot), and Berwick, Me.; and to Portsmouth, Rye, Epsom, and Dover, N. H. On either side of the Piscataqua River, including Portsmouth, Kittery, Berwick and Dover, the ending ey came early into use. For a long time the vowels i and e were almost indiscriminately used in the first syllable, but, by 1750, the spelling Libbey became the standard one. Isaac Libby, who was reared in Portsmouth, but lived afterward in Rochester, used Lebby. In Scarborough and Falmouth, the most general spelling used by the best educated members of the family, was Libbee. The final y, however, was always used by those who went from Portsmouth to Scarborough, and it was generally spelled by them Libby, but sometimes Libbey. In Rye, on the other side of the "Libbey" towns, and in Epsom, which was settled by Rye families, the standard spelling was Libbee, although Libbe occurred occasionally at first. The following table gives a substantially correct account of the various spelling:

In Scarborough, more than a hundred years ago, the spelling Libby was universally adopted, and has continued since. From Scarborough that spelling has spread almost everywhere, and is now used by nearly the whole family.

The only families that left Scarborough before the adoption of the spelling Libby were those that settled in Machias, and spread from that place into neighboring towns. In those towns the spelling Libbee was continued until the present century, and then Libby was generally adopted, although some of that family now use Libbey. As a rule it may be said that all the Maine Libbys use the spelling Libby. In Portsmouth and Dover, and the families springing from those places, the spelling Libbey has, for the most part, continued.

The spelling Libbey has been generally continued in Eliot, (formerly Kittery), and Berwick, but some individuals use Libby. The Sanford, Lebanon, and Milton branches of the Berwick family generally adhere to the former spelling, while the Tuftonborough family uses Libby. The Saco branch of the Eliot family generally uses Libby, but in the branch of the Saco family that settled in Limington Libbey occurs. The branches of the Berwick and Eliot families that settled in Newfield, Limerick, and Shapleigh, use Libby. The Durham and Rochester branches of the Eliot family use Libbey.

In Rye, and the towns in which the Rye family settled, the spelling Libbee was used almost exclusively until the present century. In Epsom, Candia, Chester, New Durham, Wolfborough, Chichester, Canterbury, N. H., Strafford, Vt., and most all places in New Hampshire and Vermont, the spelling Libbey has gradually been adopted; but in some cases the spelling Libbee has been retained, which in one case has been varied to Libbie. The branch of the Rye family that settled in Gilford, N. H., and the many families that settled in the state of Maine, all adopted Libby. The New Brunswick branch of the family uses sometimes Libby and sometimes Libbey.

While these facts cover the general drift which the spelling has taken, yet many individuals have changed from one mode to another for no reason but their own fancy. While it is a questionable step to depart from the mode of spelling used by one's immediate ancestors, yet it is gratifying to notice that most of the changes now made are changes not from, but to the true spelling. Doubtless fifty names would now include all who spell their names other than Libby and Libbey, and the latter is used by probably not more than one-tenth part of the family.

INTER-MARRIAGE.

A notable feature of the family has been the frequency of inter-marriage. Ten of the immigrant's grandchildren married their own blood, and the same tendency has continued ever since. There is now but a small portion of the family that has only one descent from the immigrant. The following pedigree of one family is rather remarkable. It will be observed that the persons have eleven descents from the patriarch.

PROLIFACY.

So far as discovered,—

The immigrant's sons numbered	8	sons.
Their sons numbered	25	grandsons.
Their sons numbered	105	gt.-grandsons.
Their sons numbered	288	gt.-gt.-grandsons.
Their sons numbered	772	gt.-gt.-gt.-grandsons.

The number of descendants of the immigrant, in the male lines, and of each of his sons and grandsons, as mentioned in this volume, may be seen in the following table:

John Libby, 9605
John, 2793	Henry, 746	Anthony, 1393	David, 3118	Matthew, 1538	Daniel, 5
{ John, Joseph, Sammuel, Daniel, Benjamin, Jeremiah, }	{ Sammuel, James, John, }	{ Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, }	{ David, Sammuel, Solomon, John, Ephraim, }	{ William, Matthew, John, Andrew, Nathaniel, Sammuel, }	{ Daniel, }

If, as it is natural to suppose, the daughters in all the generations, on an average, have had as numerous progeny as the sons, the whole number of the immigrant's descendants cannot be less than 300,000.

THE LIBBY FAMILY

IN AMERICA.

THE IMMIGRANT.

MAINE was settled chiefly through speculative enterprises of English merchants. They sent yearly many vessels to fish on her coast, and established trading houses at convenient points to supply the wants of their fishermen and to obtain furs from the Indians. One of those stations was located on Richmond's Island, a small island on the coast of Cumberland county, distant about one mile from the coast of Cape Elizabeth. There had been one Walter Bagnall there, trading with the Indians; but he had dealt unjustly with them and they had murdered him. In 1631 Robert Trelawny and Moses Goodyear, of Plymouth, Devonshire County, England, procured a patent which included that island, and soon after established a trading post, with John Winter as their agent. In John Winter's employ first appears he, the generations of whose descendants this volume records.

John Libby was born in England about the year 1602. In July, 1677, he stated that, "the good and pious report that was spread abroad, into our Native Land of this country, caused your Petitioner to come for this Land 47 yeares agoe, where he hath ever since Continued." According to this, the year of his immigration was 1630; but "47 yeares" was probably a slight exaggeration. The "good and pious report" was doubtless set afloat by Trelawny in his efforts to obtain men to carry on his fisheries, and there can be little doubt that John Libby was sent over by him.

In Winter's report to Trelawny of his management of the station for the year ending 15 July 1639, occurs the following account:*

Jn ^o Libby Debito ^r for aquauite for wine for Monie disburst by Mr Trelawny to Mr Jn ^o Sharpe for him pd him in in beau ^r att Ss for y ^e ballance	} } } }	 	...4.6 ...13.. ...3... ...1.2.6	} } } }	P Contra Credito ^r for his yeares service	 	..5...
---	------------------	-------------------------------	--	------------------	---	-------------------------------	--------

*This and the following accounts were copied from the MS. of the "Trelawny Papers," about to be published by the Maine Historical Society, through the courtesy of Hon. J. W. Bradbury, Chairman of the Standing Committee, and Gen. John Marshall Brown, Chairman of the Publishing Committee of that society.

In Winter's next report, the following — evidently a back account — occurs :

February 13 th 1639
John Libby Debiter for sundry Commodities in the house from 15 th december to the day about written	}	..1	11	.9	½	P Contra Crediter for soe much due vnto him for his third yeares service	}	..5	...
& s d for 3 8 2½ is for soe much due vnto him to ballance his account for his third yeares service pd him here						..3

In the reports for the two following years, his name does not appear; but in an "act. of Disbursements for the use of the Plantation at Richmon," between June 1642 and June 1643, is the following item :

for money pd John Libby for 6 weeke worke at 6s p weeke	}	.1 16 ..

From this we gather that John Libby was in the employ of Trelawny four years,—from the summer of 1635 until the summer of 1639,—and that during that time a large part of his earnings was paid for him in England. This was doubtless for the support of the wife whom he had left behind him; and probably in 1640 he sent for her, and took up his permanent abode on the neighboring main land, on the possessions of Thomas Cammock, the patentee of Black Point.

A few miles west of Richmond's Island, formed by the little river now called Nonesuch, on the west, and a still smaller stream, since dignified by the name Libby River, on the southeast, was a low neck of land. Broad acres of salt marsh—ready hay-fields—reached away to the southwest, to where the two streams united with each other and with a third, forming a sheltered bay, and then flowing out over a sand-bar into the ocean. On that neck, close to the marsh of the stream that bears his name, in what is now the town of Scarborough, John Libby built his house. The land which he selected was afterward laid out to him by Henry Jocelyn, (who had come into possession of the Cammock patent), and for many years he doubtless occupied it as his tenant. During those years much of his time was probably devoted to fishing, but as his land gradually became more productive, he doubtless depended less upon the sea, and applied himself exclusively to the tilling of the soil.

1 Jan. 1663, by a document in which he was described as a "planter," he received from Jocelyn, "a certain tract of land bounded as followeth, vise. the Marsh to beginne at the next cricke to y^e Eastward of the sayd Libby's coman landing place, and from thence to his dwelling house, according as his fence goeth, & was formerly bounded by mee, [Jocelyn], from thence Westward & North Westward to a tree marked by me formerly & from thence to goe over upon a viswall lyne upon the dwelling house of Mr. Hene: Watts at Bleu poynt, [across the mouth of Nonesuch River.] So far as the flatts Also the Marsh halfe of that Necke his dwelling house stands upon, according to the bounds formerly he meylayd out & further all the Marsh to y^e Eastward of the Bridge [over Libby River] on that side the cricke to the Upland so far as the Mayn Cricke called the pine Cricke & over against Godfrey Shelddens house & soe far up the sayd Cricke until it comes close up unto the upland & also fivety acres of upland adjoining to the sayd Marsh & and to go into the land according to the marked trees formerly laid out unto him, one hundred and sixty pooles to every acer Sixteen foote & an a halfe to every poole, also to have free comage, with lyberty of fishing & fowling & cutting for ordinary uses in any Swamp or Elsewhere, unbounded forth to others, in such lands as is or shall be unfenced"; in consideration of him his heirs, administrators, and assigns, "Yielding & paying unto the sayd Henry Jocelyn his heyres & Assignes for every fivety acers of Upland & Meddow annually three days worke forever, that is to say two days worke in harvest, or foode tyme, & one day in cutting of wood, against the feast of Christ tyde, if it bee lawfully demanded."

From the time of his six weeks work for Winter, between June 1642 and June 1643, until the above transfer, his name occurs only once in existing records. 14 April 1661, he was one of the appraisers of the estate of Andrew Heffers.

John Libby was (to use the words of the History of Scarborough) "for many years one of the town's principal planters"; but he took no part in the affairs of the province, and little, so far as is known,* in the management of the town. It incidentally appears, however, that he was constable in 1664, and his name stands first of the four selectmen in a town grant bearing date 1669. His name, except as constable, does not appear at all in the provincial court records, and that at a period when quarrels and litigations were the order of the day, and indietments were issued for the most trivial offences, and on most questionable testimony. That in point of morality he took a stand far above his class, is very evident from a comparison between his accounts while on Richmond's Island and those of his fellow fishermen. Whereas most of them spent their entire wages for spirits and tobacco, he used no tobacco and very little intoxicating drink of any sort; while nearly all of what he did use was wine. He seems to have practiced that quiet, correct, peaceful mode of life which has always characterized his descendants.

In Philip's war, in which were devastated all the more exposed settlements of Maine, John Libby suffered in common with the other inhabitants. He lost everything he had except his plantation. In the late summer of 1675, hostile Indians began to appear at Black Point, shooting cattle, etc. Those of the inhabitants who lived at any distance from the garrison (and among them John Libby) were compelled to leave their habitations for the safer abode. Their crops had to be gathered under the protection of soldiers who went from Boston. The burning of John Libby's house was recorded in the diary of Capt. Joshua Scotow, who had charge of the Boston soldiers, as follows: "Sept. 7th, 1675. Being Lord's day * the enemy before of their designs early in the morning burnt those houses and barnes our Capne saved the day before—they burnt also 8 or 9 deserted houses belonging to Libby and children."

*The existing town records of Scarborough date back so as to include only the declining years of his life.

In October, 1676, Black Point garrison was deserted, and most of the inhabitants fled to Boston. The able-bodied men returned soon after and again took possession of the garrison, which the Indians, contrary to their custom, had left unburnt. Probably the women and children did not return until the close of the war; at any rate, John Libby with his wife and younger children were in Boston 10 July 1677, and on that date petitioned the Governor and Council there assembled, that his sons Henry and Anthony, on whom he stated he was dependent for support, might be discharged from the Black Point garrison. The petition was granted the same day.†

He returned to Black Point probably very soon after. There was no serious trouble there subsequent to June 1677, and 12 Apr. 1678 terms of peace were finally ratified. In a short time Black Point had regained something of its former prosperity and in the few remaining years of his life, John Libby acquired a comfortable property. He died at about eighty years of age. In his will, dated 9 Feb. 1682, he gave "unto my [his] Children five Shillings

That John Libby had two wives is certain. Of the first, nothing is known but that she was the mother of all his sons except Matthew and Daniel, and probably all his daughters. Of the second there is nothing known but her christian name, which appears from the mention in bounding a town grant, 1 May 1686, of "Mary Libby's marshes." How long Mary Libby outlived her husband is uncertain; but she probably lived to be again driven from her home by the Indians, as no attempt was made to settle her estate. 6 Apr. 1720, a warrant was issued to Captain John Libby, 1-1, to administer upon his grandfather's estate; the will being either forgotten or set aside. The inventory mentioned only the real estate at Black Point—100 acres of upland, 9 acres of fresh meadow, and 100 acres of salt marsh.

The children† of John Libby, probably all born in this country except the eldest, were:

- 1 John, b. 1636; m. Agnes ———.
- 2 James. { These both lost their lives in Philip's war: unmarried.
- 3 Samuel. } One was killed at Black Point in the spring of 1677; the other was taken sick in the garrison, carried to Boston, and there died 9 July 1677.
- 4 Joanna, m. Thomas Bickford of Black Point. His father lived at Dover, N. H., and in the second Indian war his family removed from Scarborough to that place.
- 5 Henry, b. 1647; m. Honor Hinkson of Scarborough.
- 6 Anthony, b. about 1649; m. Sarah Drake of Hampton, N. H.
- 7 Rebecca, married Joshua Brown of Scarborough.
- 8 Sarah, b. 1653; m. Robert Tidy of Scarborough.
- 9 Hannah, married Daniel Fogg of Scarborough.
- 10 David, b. 1657; m. Eleanor ———.
- 11 Matthew, b. 1663; m. Elizabeth Brown of Scarborough.
- 12 Daniel, m. Mary Ashton of Scarborough.

*Thirty-seven years later these lands alone were appraised at £139}.

†From the fact that a number of his children, or their heirs, quit-claimed to other parties one-thirteenth part of his property each, it seems that he left twelve children—probably two more daughters whose names do not appear. The four whose names are given were discovered, not by direct search, but casually; in the same way the others may some day come to light.

SECOND GENERATION.

JOHN LIBBY, born probably in England, in the year 1636; married AGNES ———.

He was reared in Scarborough. In August 1668, which was probably soon after his marriage, he bought fifty acres of land adjoining his father's plantation. This was no doubt his residence while he lived at Black Point, although he afterward received several grants from the town. He took quite an active part in the public matters of the town, and served as selectman in the years 1670, 1674, 1683, and 1687.

The settlement at Black Point was still in rather poor condition, when the Indians, instigated by the French, again began to disturb the quiet of the settlers all along the coast of Maine, and became more and more aggressive until May 1690, when Fort Loyal, on Casco Neck, a few miles north of Black Point, was attacked by a large body of Indians with their French allies. After a siege of five days, the fort was surrendered, and the inhabitants of Scarborough, without waiting to be attacked themselves, immediately deserted their homes and fled to safer localities.

John Libby with his whole family fled to Portsmouth, N. H. His youngest son, Jeremiah, was then ten months old. In Portsmouth, where he lived until his death, he followed the calling of miller, and during the earlier years of his residence there, was frequently chosen to fill the minor town offices. He lived to very old age; how old, is not known, but as late as 1719-20 he made a deposition about early Scarborough matters. He probably died soon after. His wife* was living in March 1717, but probably died before her husband.

Their children† were all born in Scarborough.

*She was probably not a Scarborough woman. In a joint deposition of herself and husband, taken 15 Mar. 1717, her husband testified that one Joseph Winnoek had lived at Black Point between sixty and seventy years before, but she limited her testimony to fifty years. It would seem that her recollection of Winnoek reached back only to the time of her marriage.

†No list of John Libby's children appears. He disposed of his property before his death, deeding his real estate to his sons John and Daniel. That the others were his sons, there is no positive proof; but there are many circumstances which might be said to prove it to all practical purposes, and there is nothing which would tend in the least degree to disprove it. All but Benjamin first appeared in Portsmouth, and among the descendants

Children :

- 1 John, married Eleanor Kirke.
- 2 Joseph, married Rebecca ——.
- 3 Samuel, married Sarah Wells.
- 4 James, married Mary Hanson.
- 5 Daniel, married Elizabeth Kirke.
- 6 Benjamin, b. 4 June 1682; m. Sarah Stone.
- 7 Jeremiah, b. 1689; married Lydia Badger.

HENRY LIBBY, born in Scarborough, in the year 1647; married HONOR HINKSON, daughter of Peter Hinkson,* whose plantation joined his father's.

He was selectman of Scarborough in 1686. In 1690 he fled, with his father-in-law, to Lynn, Mass. He was one of the company which first attempted to re-settle their possessions. Tradition says that they came from Lynn in a sloop, and built a garrison on Prout's Neck, which they successfully defended from a force of five hundred French and Indians.

Henry Libby and his sons were all present at the first town meeting, in 1720. With one John Boden, he was chosen to go and show the old highways to the selectmen. In September, 1728, at the age of 81, he became a member of the Congregational church at Black Point, which had just been organized under the pastoral charge of the Rev. William Tompson.

His house stood on the lot which was recently added to the south side of the Black Point burying-ground, and was afterward occupied by his eldest son. He died 21 Oct. 1732. His wife died, 24 Aug. 1724, aged sixty.

Children :

- 1 Mary, m. 13 Jan. 1715, at Marblehead, Mass., Richard Webber.
- 2 Samuel, b. 6 July 1689; m. Abigail Meserve and Mary Jones.
- 3 Sarah, died in Scarborough, 1 Mar. 1723.
- 4 James, married 16 Mar. 1738, Abigail Larrabee. His name scarcely appears except in deeding away what property he inherited from his father and mother. The baptisms of the following children occur:

of Benjamin the tradition is that he went to Berwick (where the records first show him) from Portsmouth. 14 June 1712, Capt. John Libby, 1-1, bought from the widow of his brother Daniel, and of Samuel Libby's widow, the rights of their husbands in the town commons. James and Jeremiah were both at Scarborough at the first town-meeting after the re-settlement of the town, in 1720, and both received town grants as their rights. Jeremiah's name occurs several times as a witness to documents executed by John, 1, and John, 1-1. Benjamin had a son Joseph, and Joseph had a son Benjamin. Benjamin had also Agnes, Daniel, and Jeremiah. John had a son James; and James, a son John. Daniel had a son Samuel, and Samuel, it is thought, a son Daniel. Jeremiah had a son John. Altogether, in the absence of positive proof, more convincing evidence that these seven were John Libby's sons could hardly be expected. What daughters he had will probably never be known.

*Philip and Peter Hinkson, probably brothers, were from Hobberton, (or Heberton), Devonshire County, England. Philip emigrated first, and settled at Saco. His widow, Margaret, married George Taylor of Black Point. She had two children by her first husband, Sarah and Meribah, both under age in 1662. In that year, Peter, who had not then left England, received a power of attorney to let a tenement in Heberton, which had fallen by inheritance to Philip. Within a year or two Peter came to Black Point, where he was one of the principal inhabitants until the second Indian war, when he removed to Lynn, Mass. He had children, Peter, Simon, Honor, and perhaps others.

- 1 Joanna, bap. 27 May 1744. It may have been she, that married Isaac Myrick, 4 June 1764.
- 2 Hannah, } twins, bap.
- 3 Susannah, } 3 May 1847.
- 4 Priscilla, bap. 19 May 1751.
- 5 Hannah, m. 15 Dec. 1720, in Marblehead, John Pollow,* and died at an early age, leaving only :
 - 1 Hannah (Pollow). It seems that she lived with her grandfather Libby and her uncle Samuel. She married Joshua Brown, 7-1-6, and died 21 Aug. 1810.
- 6 Elizabeth, m. 16 Mar. 1727, Sampson Plummer. Children :
 - 1 Elizabeth (Plummer), b. 27 Feb. 1728.
 - 2 James (Plummer), b. 29 Sept. 1730.
 - 3 Jeremiah (Plummer), b. 16 June 1733.
 - 4 Joseph (Plummer), b. 8 Feb. 1735.
 - 5 John (Plummer), bap. Mar. 1737 ; died young.
 - 6 Jonathan (Plummer), b. 20 Oct. 1739.
 - 7 Samuel (Plummer), b. 16 Sept. 1742 ; m. Sarah Bragdon.
 - 8 Phebe (Plummer), b. 29 Sept. 1744 ; m. Benj. Small. [See the footnote under David. 10.]
 - 9 Hannah (Plummer), b. 15 June 1747 ; m. Thomas Libby, 11-6-5.
- 7 John, married Mary Goodwin, and Anna Fogg, 9-5-2.

ANTHONY LIBBY, born in Scarborough, about 1649; married SARAH DRAKE, born 20 Aug. 1656, daughter of Abraham and Jane Drake, of Hampton, N. H.

Anthony Libby was a carpenter. He lived in his native town until some years after Philip's war. In May, 1681, he was one of a committee chosen to purchase timber for building a "fort", Scottow's garrison. In November following, he was taxed for 50 acres of land, 6 acres of marsh, 1 cow, 2 hogs, and 1 mare. In the first part of 1682, he moved to Falmouth. There he found his wife, who was a sister of the wife of Anthony Brackett of that place. In 1685, he removed to her native town of Hampton, and settled in the northeast part of that town, subsequently set off to Rye. His wife died 12 June 1716. He married second, 6 Jan. 1717-18, Jane Rackley of Portsmouth, and lived only a few weeks.

His will was as follows :

HANNAH LIBBY, born in Scarborough, about 1655; married DANIEL FOGG. He was a son of Samuel Fogg, of Hampton, N. H., supposed to have come from Wales.

Daniel Fogg learned the blacksmith's trade, and settled at Black Point as early as 1681. At the breaking up of the settlement in 1690, he removed to Portsmouth, and about ten years later to Kittery, now Eliot, Me. There he died, in 1755, having outlived his wife many years.

10

DAVID LIBBY, born in Scarborough, in the year 1657; married ELEANOR ———.

From the town records it appears that, 11 Feb. 1681, he and four others were chosen to renew the bounds between Casco (afterward Falmouth, and now Cape Elizabeth) and Scarborough, and that he received several town grants.

When the town was deserted in 1690, he went to Portsmouth, where he lived about ten years. In December, 1699, he, his brother Matthew, his brother-in-law Daniel Fogg, Joseph Hammond and Stephen Tobey, the first three being then of Portsmouth and the others of Kittery, bought what was known as the Knowles purchase. It was in that part of Kittery which is now Eliot. It fronted on the Piscataqua river, at the "Long Reach," about three-fourths of a mile, and stretched back into the town a long distance. The following spring they divided it lengthwise, so that each had a fronting on the river. Hammond had the north-west portion, Fogg the next, Matthew Libby the next, David Libby the next, and Tobey the southeast lot.

The division line between the portions of David Libby and his brother passed over a piece of rising ground since known as Libby Hill. On this hill, within a few rods of each other, they built their houses. They laid out a lane between their lands, reaching way from the river to their northeast boundary; portions of this lane are still open. David Libby built his house, a two-storied one, on the site of the present residence of Moses Libby, 10-7-1-3-8. It remained until after the death, in 1807, of his great-grandson, Joel Libby, the father of Moses. In that house David Libby lived the rest of his life, a well-to-do farmer.

In his will, dated 6 May 1725, he provided for his wife, and left his homestead to his son Ephraim. To David he gave twenty acres of land on the northeast of, and adjoining, the county road; to Solomon he gave a two-acre house lot on the southwest side of the road; to John he had already given, by deed, his Scarborough lands. He probably died in 1736, for in December of that year his will was proved. The amount of the inventory was £1329, 5s. He was buried on his own farm, and with him now lie five generations of his descendants.

His children were:

- 1 David, m. Esther Hanscom.
- 2 Samuel, m. Mary Libby, 11-3.
- 3 Mary, m. 12 April 1722, Joseph Small.*
- 4 Solomon, m. Martha Hanscom.
- 5 John, m. Sarah Libby, 11-8.
- 6 Elizabeth, m. Sept. 1738, Edward Cloudman, of Biddeford. She was probably also a party in the following marriage, recorded in the Biddeford town records: Abraham Townsend and Elizabeth Libbe, both of Biddeford, married 17 Nov. 1743.
- 7 Ephraim, b. 2 Feb. 1702, in Kittery; m. Mary Ambler.
- 8 Eleanor, b. 21 June 1705, in Kittery; m. 1st, Zebulon Trickey; 2d, Lt. Andrew Libby, 11-7.
- 9 Abigail, b. 29 Sept. 1707; m. Nov. 1725, Richard Nason.

11

MATTHEW LIBBY, born in Scarborough, in the year 1663; married ELIZABETH BROWN, daughter of Andrew Brown, one of the principal inhabitants of Black Point.

As has been already told, he went to Portsmouth in 1690, and

*FRANCIS SMALE seems to have been the ancestor of a great portion of the Smalls, and Smalleys, of New England. He was born 1627. It is probable that he was a son of "Mr." Edward Smale, who was of Kittery as early as 1640, and in 1645 had commission as magistrate; of whose family nothing appears. Francis Smale first appeared at Dover, 1648; was of Falmouth 1657 and 1663; of Kittery 1668, where he spent the chief part of his life; in old age removed to Truro, Cape Cod, where he died about 1714. He was an Indian-trader, and had a trading house "back of Wells," on land which he afterward bought of Capt. Sandy, the Indian, twenty miles square, afterward known as the "five Ossipee townships." His wife was Elizabeth ———, probably that servant of Capt. Francis Champenoune mentioned in his will. She was born 1634, and lived to old age. They had the following children:

- 1 Edward, died before his father.
- 2 Francis, died before his father.
- +3 Samuel, b. 1665; settled on the homestead in Kittery.
- 4 Benjamin, settled in Connecticut.
- 5 Daniel, a carpenter, lived first at Truro, then at Provincetown. Had children:

- 6 Elizabeth (probably), m. John Pugsley, of Kittery.

- 1 Elizabeth, b. 9 Nov. 1695; m. 10 Feb. 1714, Benjamin March.

- 3 Joseph, b. 3 Dec. 1702; m. Mary Libby, 10-3.

3-2 DEACON SAMUEL SMALL settled in Scarborough. Children:

- 2 Anna, b. 10 Sept. 1720; m. Josiah Libby, 1-1-6.
- 3 John, b. 30 Jan. 1722-3; m. 1st, Sarah Atkins; 2d, Mary McKenney.
- 4 Joshua, b. 26 Feb. 1725-6; m. Susannah Kennard of Kittery.
- 5 Elizabeth, b. 3 Feb. 1727-8; m. James Harmon.

- 7 Benjamin, b. 27 June 1732.
- 8 James, b. 14 July 1736.
- 9 Mary, b. 13 Jan. 1739.

3-2-1 DEA. SAMUEL SMALL always lived in Scarborough. Children:

thence to Kittery, in the winter of 1699-1700. He built his house close by the one now occupied by Thomas Adlington. It was built with hewn timber, and the upper story projected over the lower one for protection against the Indians. In that house he lived until his death. It was taken down in the early part of this century, and the present one built.

Some time before the second organization of the town of Scarborough, he, with Roger Deering, John Libby, 1-1, and Roger Hunnewell, went down to Black Point and built a sawmill on Nonesuch River, a short distance above the present Congregational church. His interest in that mill he afterward gave to his three sons, William, John and Andrew, and it is doubtful if he ran the mill himself longer than a very short time. He died in March, 1740-1, leaving his homestead to his son Samuel. His widow died two or three years later. In the family burying-ground lie Matthew Libby and his wife and five generations of their descendants, with nothing but rough stones to mark their graves.

Their children—the first six born in Scarborough and Portsmouth, and the rest in Kittery—were:

- 1 William, m. Sarah Brown, 7-2.

CAPT. JOHN LIBBY, born in Scarborough, probably as early as 1665; married 29 Dec. 1690, ELEANOR KIRKE, dau. of Henry and Ruth (Glanfield) Kirke, of Portsmouth.

He accompanied his father to Portsmouth in 1690. He was a mechanic, and we find him mentioned at different times as housewright, millwright, and wheelwright. He, with his uncle Matthew Libby and others, went down to Scarborough and built a sawmill some years before 1720, and in the winter of 1729-30 he transferred his residence thither, and settled on the original homestead of his grandfather. He was part owner in, and probably the builder of, the gristmill on Libby River, a little below the bridge, afterward known as Fogg's mill. He acquired the title Captain in New Hampshire, and always retained it.

The time of his death is unknown, but it was between August, 1746, and December, 1751. The last time that his wife's name appears in any records is in January, 1734.

Their children* were :

- 1 Elizabeth, m. Seth Ring of Newington, N. H.

- 2 Joseph, m. 29 Dec. 1726, Elizabeth Meserve, of Dover. About 1731 he settled on a farm in Rochester, but after two or three years returned to Portsmouth, where the chief part of his life was spent as a sailor and fisherman. Nothing appears of him nor his wife after Nov. 1739, when they were both living in Portsmouth.

In 1742 or 3 he removed from Portsmouth to Exeter, where he followed his calling of potter, and also kept a store in which he kept his wares for sale, and also a small quantity of staple merchandise. January, 1752, administration of his estate was granted to Josiah Thing. No children appear.

JAMES LIBBY, born in Scarborough, probably about 1676; married 9 June 1698, MARY HANSON, daughter of Isaac and Mary Hanson, of Portsmouth.

He grew up, and always lived in Portsmouth, where he followed the calling of house-carpenter. Among the New Hampshire state papers is preserved an order about agreeing with James Libby, carpenter, for finishing a line of fortifications near Portsmouth. He was at the first town meeting of Scarborough, and received large grants of land, which he afterward gave to his son James. Up to 1747 he lived on a farm, but in that year he sold to Col. Nath'l Meserve, and bought a house and garden-spot, where he died in 1754. He was a member of the Church of Christ. In 1712 he was constable "for the Bank," (Strawberry Bank), and afterward filled many town offices, from selectman, down.

The last mention of his wife Mary, who seems to have been the mother of all his children, was in Aug., 1718, and in 1736 he had married a second wife, whose name was Elizabeth. She out-lived him ten years or more.

His children were :

1-6

DEACON BENJAMIN LIBBY, born in Scarborough, 4 June 1682; married 20 Dec. 1707, SARAH STONE, daughter of Daniel and Patience (Goodwin) Stone, of Kittery.

He was carried by his father to Portsmouth in 1690, and afterward went to Berwick and "lived and served his time" seven years with Col. John Plaisted. He never left Berwick, but settled near what is now South Berwick Junction, on the "Witch-trot" road, and there lived until his death.

Deacon Libby was for many years one of the principal inhabitants of the town; frequently placed on the most important town committees, often presiding over the meetings of the town, and from 1719 to 1736, selectman. He was one of the original proprietors of Lebanon and took a prominent part in the early management of that township. 16 Sept. 1725, he was chosen deacon of the Congregational church, of which he and his wife had been members from 7 Oct. 1716, and filled that position until 25 June 1761. There is a record of special thanks voted him for his services. He died 9 Nov. 1768. Whether his wife died before or after is unknown, but she was living as late as February, 1764.

Their children were:

- 1 Agnes, b. 24 May 1709; m. ——— Clark.
- 2 Joseph, } twins, born } m. Anna ———, and Mrs. Eliz. Shorey.
- 3 Benjamin, { 5 Apr. 1711; } m. Sarah ———; died 1734. Probably it was his widow that was of Boston in 1754, and was put under guardianship as being non compos mentis. The children of Benjamin Libby were:
 - 1 Paul, bap. 1733; m. 31 Dec. 1758, Meribah Lord. He was a farmer in the North Parish of Berwick as late as 1784. No children appear.

1-7

JEREMIAH LIBBY, born in Scarborough in 1689; married 28 April 1715, LYDIA BADGER, daughter of John and Hannah (Swett) Badger, of Portsmouth.

He was ten months old when his father was driven from his home in Scarborough, and fled to Portsmouth. In Portsmouth he ever afterward lived, and practiced successfully the calling of house-carpenter. He took no active part in town affairs, but that he had the confidence and esteem of his townsmen is evident from his being several times on important committees, and that he was at times chosen moderator of the town meetings. He and his wife were both members of the Church of Christ. She died before him by a number of years. He died in the spring of 1766, having outlived six of his eight children.

They were :

- 1 Jeremiah, b. 21 Feb. 1717; m. 1st, Mary Symmes; 2d, Sarah Newmarch.
- 2 George, b. 20 Jan. 1719; m. Elizabeth ———.
- 3 John, b. 2 Nov. 1720; probably died without issue, as he was not mentioned in his father's will.
- 4 Lydia, b. 18 Oct. 1722; m. ——— Brown. She lived to a great age, and died with her nephew, Jeremiah Libby, Esq., 1-7-1-2.
- 5 Sarah, died in infancy.
- 6 Theodore, b. 10 Dec. 1726; m. ——— ———.
- 7 Sarah, b. 21 Oct. 1728; probably married an Ayres, as her father, in his will, mentioned his grand-daughter, Hannah Ayres.
- 8 Abigail, m. ——— Pike.

5-2

LIEUT. SAMUEL LIBBY, born in Scarborough, 6 July 1689; married first, 29 Feb. 1727, ABIGAIL MESERVE; (died 10 Nov. 1734); second, 17 Jan. 1739, MARY JONES, daughter of John and Joanna (Cotton*) Jones,* of Scarborough. She died in June, 1754.

In the flight from Scarborough in 1690, he was carried to Lynn, Mass., and there he must have received his education, which was much superior to that of most of the second settlers of Scarborough. He was present at the first town meeting, and was chosen clerk. From that time on he took a leading part in the affairs of both town and church. In February, 1726, it was voted by the town that divine services should be held "one Sabbath day at the house of Col. Westbrook at Dmstan, and another at the house of Samuel Libby on Black Point," that is, alternately. In May, 1728, he was on the committee chosen to oversee the building of the meeting-house. It was built a few rods north of his house, and the land between became the burying-ground, into which, a few years since, the site of his house was taken. He filled nearly all the offices in the gift of the town. He was clerk during the first six years of the town's organization; selectman from 1721 to 1742, except the year 1727; and frequently moderator, and placed on the most important committees.

*Both natives of Portsmouth, N. H.

He was a skilled land-surveyor, and probably surveyed more during the thirty years that succeeded the re-organization of the town in 1720, than any other man in that region. He was lot-layer for the proprietors, and was also proprietors' clerk from 1727 until old age. In his latter days he became very feeble, and during the last fifteen years of his life his townsmen had to look to others for the many services which they had been accustomed to receive from him. He died 1 Jan. 1770.

His children by his first wife, were:

- 1 Asa, b. 6 Sept. 1731, } doubtless died young.
- 2 Amy, b. 10 Aug. 1733, }

By his second wife:

- 3 Ebenezer, b. 9 Nov. 1740; m. Miriam Larrabee.*

*WILLIAM LARRABEE, tradition says, was a Frenchman. He married, Nov. 1655, in Malden, Mass., Elizabeth, dau. of George and Elizabeth (Wilkinson) Felt. George Felt was the most prominent of the early settlers of North Yarmouth, Me., and thither his son-in-law, Larrabee, removed. He bought land of an Indian named Warronaby. It was probably during Philip's war that he returned to Malden, where he died. His will was probated 24 Oct. 1692. His children were:

- 1 Stephen m. Isabel —; lived in Malden.
- 2 William, b. 1658; m. Catherine —; lived in Wells, Me.
- +3 Thomas, m. Elizabeth —.
- 4 John (probably), returned "beyond the sea."
- 5 Isaac b. 1664; lived in Lynn, Mass.
- 6 Benjamin, b. 1666; m. Deborah Ingersol; lived in Falmouth, Me.
- 7 Samuel, died before 1727.

3 THOMAS LARRABEE, settled in Scarborough; fled to Kittery, 1799; returned at the second settlement of Scarborough; was killed by the Indians, with his son Anthony, 19 Apr. 1723. He lived, was killed, and was buried, on the "ten acre home lot," on the west side of Black Point road, which now forms part of the Storer Libby (11-7-2-4-8) homestead. Children:

- +1 Thomas, m. Abigail Pitman, May. 1815.
- 2 Eleanor, m. 1 Dec. 1715, Christopher Mitchell.
- 3 Anthony, was killed with his father, 19 Apr. 1723.
- +4 Benjamin, b. 1700; m. Sarah Johnson.
- +5 John, m. Mary Ingersol.
- 6 Hannah, m. 25 Feb. 1737, Benjamin Richards.
- 7 Jane.

3-1 THOMAS LARRABEE, lived in Kittery, Portsmouth, and Scarborough. No list of his children appears, but they were probably as follows:

- 1 Abigail, m. James Libby, 5-4.
- 2 Samuel, m. Sarah Brown.
- 3 Thomas, m. Mary —.
- 4 Isaac, m. Deborah Larrabee, 3-5-2; settled in Machias.

- 8 Olive, bap. 12 June 1743; m. 12 Nov. 1760, Joseph Drisco.

3-4 BENJAMIN LARRABEE, born 1700; lived on Pleasant Hill, in Scarborough; died 17 Dec. 1763. His widow died 26 Dec. 1789. Children:

- 1 William, b. 2 May 1727; m. Mary Burns, Lydia Mitchell, Lucy Stone, and Abigail Dyer.
- 2 Sarah, b. 28 June 1729; m. 19 Oct. 1755, John Adams.

5-7

CAPT. JOHN LIBBY, born probably soon after the year 1700; married first, 15 June 1728, MARY GOODWIN, daughter of Wm. and Deliverance (Taylor) Goodwin, of Berwick; (died after a few years); second, 24 Aug. 1738, ANNA FOGG, 9-5-2.

He accompanied his father from Lynn to Scarborough, and settled on a farm. His house was on Oak Hill, on the north side of what afterward became the post-road between Portland and Saco, a little west of the road leading to Gorham Corner.

He was a man of unusual energy and ability, and filled repeatedly the most important positions in the town. We find him chosen "to locate Black Point school," and "to inspect the law relative to the killing of deer." He was also a land surveyor and succeeded in a measure to the position which his brother had filled. He was lieutenant in Capt. George Berry's company in 1745, and after the death of Capt. John Libby, 1-1, became known as Captain, and retained that epithet until his death, which was the result of an accident. He was on a fishing trip, with two others, and the small boat in which they were was upset near the mouth of Nonesuch River, and although an expert swimmer, he never rose. The two others escaped, and there were suspicions of foul play at the time of his death.

His children, by his first wife, were:

- 1 Henry, b. 6 Oct. 1729; doubtless died young.
- 2 Hannah, b. 4 Mar. 1731; m. John Fogg, 9-6-2.
- 3 Lucy, bap. June 1735; died in infancy.
- 4 Edward, b. 21 June 1736; doubtless died young.

- 3 Joseph, b. 22 Feb. 1788; m. Phebe Libby, 5-7-14-6.
- 7 Miriam, b. 24 Feb. 1744; m. Ebenezer Libby, 5-2-3.

- 1 John, died in infancy.

 6 Abner, } 4 July 1739; } m. 29 Nov. 1762. Lucy Hunnewell. 7-1-2-6.
 He "went off and never was heard from." It was probably his widow that married, 1 Dec. 1767, George Berry of Georgetown.
 7 Olive, b. 6 Feb. 1741; probably died young.
 8 Stephen, b. 13 Jan. 1743; m. Margaret Miller.
 9 Moses. } twins, born } died young.

 14 Seth, b. 1 May 1755; m. Lydia Jordan.
 By Lydia (Skillings), widow of Mark Libby, 10-5-3:

6-3

ABRAHAM LIBBY, born in Hampton, N. H., about 1688; married 14 Jan. 1713, SABINA PHILBRICK, daughter of Joseph and Tryphene Philbrick, of Hampton.

He was a farmer. He lived in Hampton until 1718 or 19, and then moved to Portsmouth, onto a farm which he had purchased. There he abode until the spring of 1757, when he moved to North Hampton. Within a year he moved to Exeter, where he lived two or three years, near the "old pickpocket mill." Thence he moved to Epsom, where he died in the spring of 1767. His wife died probably before he left Portsmouth.

Their children were:

- 1 Betty, b. 6 Oct. 1713; m. 19 July, 1733, Ephraim Holmes, of Barrington.

 7 Ephraim, bap. 1734; } probably died young.

6-4

ISAAC LIBBY, born about 1690, in Hampton, N. H.; married MARY ———.

He was a farmer, and spent the chief part of his life in Rye. He took an active part in the settlement of Epsom, and for a number of years he doubtless divided his time between those two places. That he was a man of good ability is evident from the positions to which he was chosen by his townsmen. He was chairman of the committee which built the first meeting-house in Epsom, 1663. He probably died there in Epsom about ten years later.

*He was brought up by his mother, and really derived his surname from her; but rather than give him the broken number, 1-5-3-a, which he must have had, it seems preferable to the compiler to place him in his true descent.

Children :

- 1 John, b. 1 Aug. 1720; m. Eleanor Berry.

10-1

DAVID LIBBY, born probably in Scarborough before his parents were driven away in 1690; married ESTHER HANSCOM, daughter of Thomas and Alice Hanscom, of Kittery.

He lived on a part of his father's homestead, in Kittery, now Eliot, until about 1731. During a portion of that time he was a licensed retailer. From Kittery he moved to Scarborough, and settled on a farm on Scottow's Hill. His house was a garrison, and stood about two rods southeast of the late residence of Leonard Libby, 10-2-4-8-6. There it was that Nathaniel Dresser was killed by the Indians. David Libby shot the Indian that did the deed, and wounded him so severely that he died soon after. David Libby died in February, 1765, and was buried on the 6th of that month. His wife died in March, 1761. They were doubtless both buried a few rods northeast of the house of Lemuel Libby, mentioned above. This spot was for many years the principal burying-ground of the inhabitants of that locality, and it is said that more than a hundred interments were made there; but it is now covered by a dense growth of shrubs and underbrush, and not more than three or four graves are discernible.

The children of David and Esther Libby were:

- 1 Alice, b. 28 Nov. 1714; m. 2 Sept. 1736, Solomon Stone.
- 2 Josiah, b. 25 Oct. 1716; m. Mary Stone.
- 3 George, b. 18 Jan. 1719; d. 15 Jan. 1790; unm. He was one of the original settlers of Machias, 1763, and from that year until his death divided his time between that place and Scarborough. He gave to the town of Machias the lot on which the town hall now stands. "On a part of this lot 'sleep the rude forefathers of the hamlet.' It has also been the site successively of two churches. In 1850, the old meeting-house standing on this lot, though not occupied for some years as a place of worship, was taken down by the town, which erected upon the same spot a large and handsome edifice, containing convenient and spacious rooms for two high schools and a commodious town hall. To this building the town voted should be given the name of Libby Hall, in honor of George Libby, and in remembrance of his generous gift of the land to the people of Machias."* He died with his nephew, Thomas Libby, 10-1-8-1, to whom he had given the farm which became his homestead.

*Letter of Peter Thatcher, Esq., to the author of the History of Scarborough.

- 4 Esther, b. 7 Apr. 1721; m. 9 June 1740, William Harmon.
- 5 Timothy, married Sarah Stone.

- 7 Eleanor, bap. in Scarborough, Aug. 1731; died young.
- 8 Thomas, b. 16 Nov. 1833; m. Mary Larrabee.

10-2

SAMUEL LIBBY, born about 1690; married 31 May 1713, MARY LIBBY, 11-3.

He was reared in that part of Kittery which is now Eliot, and became a carpenter. He built him a house on a portion of the homestead of his father-in-law, his uncle Matthew Libby, and there lived until about 1731. He then removed to Scarborough and settled on the farm now occupied by Samuel Manson Libby, 10-2-4-9-3. He was a thrifty, enterprising man, and accumulated a large property for those times. His inventory mentions his homestead, (valued at £280), 322 acres of land beside, half a sawmill, a negro man, (his name was Nimrod), eight oxen, eight cows, four steers, four heifers, one horse, one bull, thirty sheep, four swine, a clock, (this was in 1754), one-eighth of a sloop, one-sixth and one-sixteenth of a schooner, and a pew in the meeting-house. He was buried 15 May 1754. His wife outlived him twenty years, and died in January, 1774.

Their children were:

- 1 Samuel, b. 7 July 1714; m. Elizabeth Hubbard.
- 2 Mary, b. 12 Apr. 1716 or 17; m. Joseph Waterhouse.
- 3 Olive, m. 21 Feb. 1739, Theophilus Smith of Saco.

10-4

SOLOMON LIBBY, born probably in Portsmouth, about 1695; married, 4 Mar. 1725, MARTHA HANSCOM, daughter of Thomas and Tamsen Hanscom, a half-sister of his brother David's wife.

He was a carpenter, and at first built him a house on his father's land, southwest of the road. He afterward came into possession of the twenty acres on the northeast side of the road, on which his brother David lived until his removal to Scarborough, and there lived until the time of his death, which occurred in the spring of 1756. He had acquired considerable real estate, and settled each of his sons on a farm. His homestead he gave to Nathan. His widow died in February, 1789, having outlived her husband thirty-three years.

Their children were:

- 1 Joseph, b. 14 Dec. 1725; m. Shuah Staples.

- 8 Eunice, died without issue, probably in childhood.

10-5

JOHN LIBBY, born probably in Portsmouth, about 1697; married, 14 Nov. 1724, SARAH LIBBY, 11-8.

He received from his father by deed of gift bearing date March, 1719, all his lands in Scarborough, and doubtless moved at once to his father's old home, as he was present at the first town meeting. His farm, on which he lived and died, included the present Robinson homestead and the land on both sides of the road between that and the old Fogg farm. (The present Fogg farm includes part of the Libby homestead.) Three of his sons, Matthew, Nathaniel, and Luke, he settled on parts of his homestead, and to Elisha and Allison, he gave lands in the interior of the town. He had an extra finger on each hand, below the little finger, and from this was called, to distinguish him from the other John Libbys in Scarborough at that time, Five Fingered John Libby.* After the death of his wife Sarah, he married, 9 Jan. 1755, Deborah Dunnivan of Falmouth, who probably died before him. He died 1 July 1764.

Children, all born in Scarborough:

- 1 Elisha, b. 1725; m. Esther Fogg, 9-5-7, and Abigail Meserve.
- 2 Matthew, b. 25 Feb. 1729; m. Sarah Hanseom and Hannah Hasty.

- 6 Luke, b. 15 Aug. 1738; m. Dorothy McKenney.
- 7 John, b. 15 Sept. 1744; never married. He was a mental imbecile. His father, at his death, provided for his support. He died in middle age.

10-7

EPHRAIM LIBBY, born in Kittery, now Eliot, 2 Feb. 1702; married, 1728, MARY AMBLER, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Trickery) Ambler of Dover, N. H.

He received from his father by will the home lot of the homestead farm, and lived and died on the spot on which he was born. His death occurred in the winter of 1776-7. His wife outlived him.

Their children were:

- 1 Ephraim, b. 22 Mar. 1732; m. Sarah Morrill and Anne Spinney.
- 2 Eleanor, b. 26 Nov. 1734; m. 20 Jan. 1759, Thomas Langley of Durham, N. H.
- 3 John, b. 2 May 1737; was impressed in the French war; marched 3 Sept. 1753, and never returned. He died in the service.
- 4 Mary, m. 1763, William Spinney.
- 5 Abigail, m. Thomas Allison.

*The other John Libbys were called respectively: John Libby, 1-1, Captain John; his son John, Blue John; John Libby, 5-7, Black John, and later, Captain John; John Libby, 1-1-2-1, Little John. There was also John Libby, 11-6, living at the same time but his nickname, if he had any, is unknown. These names seldom appear in the records, but the places were supplied either by numbers, second, third, etc., or by stating the father's name. In the latter method occur frequent illustrations of the original formation of the patronymic class of surnames. John Libby, John's son; John Libby, Henry's son; and John Libby, David's son, were frequently written John Libby Johnson, John Libby Henryson, and John Libby Davidson; so that to a casual reader, Johnson, Henryson and Davidson would seem to be the surnames of the men, and Libby only a middle name.

10-8

ELEANOR LIBBY, born in Kittery, Me., 21 June 1705; married, 1727, ZEBULON TRICKEY. They moved at once to Scarborough, and settled at Black Point, but a few years after removed to that part of Falmouth which is now Cape Elizabeth. There he died, and she married second, 1757, Lieut. Andrew Libby, 11-7.

- 2 Rebecca (Trickey), b. 13 Mar. 1731, in Scarborough.

They probably all died young, as nothing more appears of them.

11-1

WILLIAM LIBBY, born probably in Scarborough, before the desertion of the town in 1690; married, 11 Nov. 1722, SARAH BROWN, 7-2.

He removed to Scarborough in 1719 or 1720. He was chosen constable at the first town meeting. He seems to have been a man whom his townsmen respected. He served at different times as selectman, and in other minor offices. His chief activity, however, was in religious matters; he served on nearly or quite all the committees which the town chose which related to the church.

He settled on a farm in the interior of the town, and both he and his wife lived to advanced age.

Their children were:

- 1 William, b. about 1723; died young.
- 2 Noah, b. about 1725; died unm. The last appearance of his name is as private in Capt. George Berry's company in 1745.

- 4 Hezekiah, b. 5 April 1729; was a bachelor. He always lived on his father's homestead. He and his sister Elizabeth kept house together. 11-2

MATTHEW LIBBY, born probably during his father's stay in Portsmouth, 1690-1700; married 3 Sept. 1730, MARY NASON.

He was a farmer. He moved down to Scarborough after the second settlement, but, after a few years, returned to Kittery, and settled on part of his father's homestead. He lived on the 24-acre lot on the northeast side of the road, now owned by Albert W. Libby, 10-7-1-4-6-3. He died in the winter of 1760-1, having outlived his wife.

Their children were :

- 1 Jerusha, b. 3 Mar. 1731; m. 30 Nov. 1762, Benj. Staples; died early, leaving no children.

11-6

JOHN LIBBY, born doubtless in Portsmouth, in the year 1698; married 1 Jan. 1734, in Scarborough, KEZIAH HUBBARD, daughter of John and Sarah (Collensby) Hubbard, of Kingston, N. H., a native of Salisbury, Mass. She was a sister of the wife of the Rev. William Tompson.

He removed to Scarborough soon after the second settlement. His house was on the site of that recently occupied by Abraham Plummer, near the present Congregational church. He died of a severe cold, (caught while working with an adz in the hold of a vessel), 7 Oct. 1756. He took no part in public affairs, but was an enterprising man, and left a good property. His widow died 29 June 1788.*

Their children were :

- 1 Anna, b. 17 Nov. 1734; m. Col. Samuel March.

*They had a negro slave whose name was Sambo—called Sambo Libby. It is still told how he used to cross the Nonesuch River. He would lower himself into the river on one side, and in two or three minutes, having crawled across on the bottom of the river, would appear climbing up the opposite bank.

11-7

LIEUT. ANDREW LIBBY, born in Kittery, now Eliot, Me., 1 Dec. 1700; married ESTHER FURBER, daughter of Jethro Furber, of Newington, N. H.

He returned to Scarborough, and settled on the farm afterward occupied by his son Simon. His house stood in the orchard opposite the present residence of John Adams Libby, 11-7-11-8-6. He became one of the largest farmers in the town, but took no part in town business. We find him, however, in 1743, one of a committee of three, chosen "to get a schoolmaster." It is not known that he was in actual service in the French war, but from 1745 until his death, he was known as Lieut. Andrew Libby. He died 5 Jan. 1773, leaving a good property. He and his wife were both members of the Congregational church. She died 1 Oct. 1756, and during the next year he married Eleanor (Libby) Trickey, 10-8. She outlived him, and died 27 Sept. 1781.

NATHANIEL LIBBY, born in Kittery, Me., 2 Nov. 1704; married, 11 Oct. 1730, MIRIAM KNIGHT.

In 1735 or 6, he removed to the adjoining town of Berwick, and settled at Blackberry Hill. This was at that time a frontier wilderness. It was much exposed to the Indians, and they had frequently to seek the shelter of the garrison. On one occasion, it is told, when Mr. Libby was away from home, the house was surrounded by savages, but his wife scared them away by deceiving them into the belief that there were men there. In that spot Nathaniel Libby cleared for himself a farm, which he occupied until his death.

After the death of his first wife, the mother of his children, he married, 16 Nov. 1757, the widow Hannah Staples, of Kittery. After his death in the spring of 1761, she returned to Kittery. He was the father of thirteen children, but only four survived him. It is said that he lost six of the thirteen, in one week, by a throat distemper.

His children were :

- 1 Nathaniel, b. about 1731; died young.
- 2 Susannah, b. about 1733; died young.

- 3 Miriam, b. about 1735; m. 24 Jan. 1779, Ephraim Goodwin.

SAMUEL LIBBY, born in Kittery, now Eliot, Me., 5 June 1709; married 12 Jan. 1736, MARGARET ROGERS. He was a farmer, and spent all his days in the house in which he was born. He died in 1788 or 9. His wife was alive in 1782, but how much longer she lived is unknown.

*No knowledge of these daughters is retained in the family. The only authority for the statements made is the records of marriage, and the fact that Samuel Libby mentioned in his will his son-in-law, Elisha Hammond.

FOURTH GENERATION.

1-1-2

JAMES LIBBY, born in Portsmouth, N. H., in the year 1700; married MARY FURBER, dau. of Jethro Furber of Newington, N. H.

He removed to Scarborough a few years before his father did, and at his father's death came into possession of the original Libby homestead. He took little part in town business, but his occasionally serving on committees of importance shows that he did not lack the confidence of his townsmen. That he was a charitable man appears from the following narrative: His son Eliakim, returning home from the Revolutionary war with nothing but his discharge to compensate him for his services, was taken sick and obliged to ask assistance of a stranger. On talking with the man to whom he applied, it appeared that many years before, while journeying penniless through Scarborough he had been taken in and cared for by Eliakim's parents and sent on his way with money to reach home. The man cared for him until he had sufficiently recovered, and then gave him money to last him home, just as he himself had been treated long before by Eliakim's parents.

James Libby died 18 Feb. 1776, and his widow, 29 Mar. 1777.

Their children were:

- 1 John, b. 18 July 1724; m. 13 Mar. 1749, Anna Libby, 1-4-1-2. He and his brother Jethro bought a tract of wild land in the interior of the town, on the banks of the Nonesuch, and divided it between them and settled on it. He had no children, and gave his farm to his brother's son Charles for the support of himself and wife. He sold it and removed to another on Beach Ridge. There John Libby died, 13 Dec. 1808; and his widow, 1 Nov. 1819.
- 2 Jethro, b. about 1726; m. Mary Libby, 1-1-5-1, and Hannah (Woodbury) Moody.
- 3 Roger, b. 14 Aug. 1729; m. 28 May 1752, Dorothy Meserve. [See page 37.] He was a farmer and settled on wild land in the north-west part of his native town. He had no children, and gave his farm to Jonathan McKenney, whose grandson, Granville McKenney, now occupies it. He was known as Captain. He died 1 Feb. 1825. After his first wife's death, he married, 1 Jan. 1805, Hannah (Manny) Watson, widow of Jonathan Watson. The records say that she died 13 Dec. 1828, "after losing four husbands, Seavey, Chandler, Watson, and Libby."

C. Hoiby.

- 4 Leah, b. 4 Mar. 1732; died young.
 5 Abigail, b. 17 Apr. 1734; m. 12 Nov. 1753, Elisha Douglass of Falmouth.

JOSIAH LIBBY, born in Portsmouth, N. H., 1715; married, 23 Mar. 1737, ANNA SMALL. [See page 32.]

He was but a boy when his father carried him to Scarborough. He grew up on the original Libby homestead, and then settled on Oak Hill. His house stood in what is now the southeast corner of the cross roads, and his farm extended to the south. He was a trumpeter in the French wars, and was known as Trumpeter 'Siah. He died at the age of thirty-five, 2 Feb. 1751, leaving a good property. His widow married, 10 Jan. 1755, Nathaniel Milliken, by whom she also had children, and died 12 Jan. 1784. The following narrative, of her telling, is remembered still.

It was during an Indian trouble, when, in their exposed position on Oak Hill, it was not safe to pass the night in their own home, and they were accustomed every day, at nightfall, to seek the protection of the garrison. One day her husband, the trumpeter, was away from home. He was expected back, but did not return at the appointed time. Darkness came on, the calls of the Indians were heard in the surrounding woods, but the husband did not appear. Nothing had been seen of the Indians for a few days previous, and he had allowed himself to be delayed, little knowing the danger his family was in. The wife and mother, not daring to have a light, sat trembling with her children in the darkness. At last her husband approached his home, and he too heard the calls of the Indians. Stealthily he made his way to his house, and in whispers prepared for their departure. With the cries of the Indians on all sides of them, they crept through the Flaggy Meadow, and by their good fortune, reached the garrison in safety. The next day they found their house pillaged. In such dangers, the days of this generation were passed.

The children of Josiah and Anna Libby were:

*This Joseph Libby was certainly a son of John and Margaret (Crussy) Libby, who were married 9 Sept. 1761. That John Libby who married Margaret Crussy, and John Libby, 1-4-5, were the same person, there is no positive proof, but there can, in reason, be no doubt that they are identical.

1-7-1

JEREMIAH LIBBY, born in Portsmouth, N. H., 21 Feb. 1717 ; married first, MARY* SYMMES, daughter of John and Hannah

*My authority for stating that she was a daughter of John Symmes is as follows : 1st, Joseph Symmes was appointed guardian of her two sons, after their father's death ; 2d, in July 1771, Jeremiah, her only surviving child, quitclaimed to the same person, his right in the estate of John and Hannah Symmes.

Symmes of Portsmouth. She died 11 July 1750, and he married second, Sarah, apparently daughter of Thomas Newmarch.

It cannot be learned what occupation he followed, for in all legal documents he was described as a gentleman. His inventory mentions no real estate, except his house lot and garden. He was selectman in 1754. He and his first wife were members of the "Church of Christ." He died shortly before May 1757. His widow seems to have married as second husband, — Newmarch.

His children, by his first wife, were:

- 1 John, b. 6 Oct. 1746; d. 25 May 1770; probably unmarried.
- 2 Jeremiah, [Esq.], b. 14 Aug. 1748; married, 23 June 1772, Elizabeth, dan. of Daniel and Margaret Lunt of Portsmouth. He was a "shop-keeper" probably before he was of age, and became a successful merchant on Market street. He was for many years one of Portsmouth's leading inhabitants, closely connected with every advance. He was an intimate friend, and enjoyed the high esteem, of Gov. Belknap. He was clerk of a company of volunteers in the Revolution, held repeatedly the highest town offices, and was for many years postmaster. In 1801, 1802, and 1805, he was candidate for the state legislature, and went ahead of his ticket, but, with the rest of his party, was defeated. It is told of him that he "wore a very large wig, and was one of the committee that received Washington in 1790." He died 4 Sept. 1824, and his widow, 20 Jan. 1826. He had no children. His house, located at the foot of Vaughan street, is now known as the White Hart Hotel.

By second wife:

- 3 Nathaniel, bap. 29 July 1753; died young.
- 4 Benjamin, bap. 15 Dec. 1754; died young.

1-7-2

GEORGE LIBBY, born in Portsmouth, 20 Jan. 1719; married ELIZABETH, apparently a daughter of Thomas and Ann Harvey of Portsmouth.

He was a sea-captain. 25 Feb. 1744, it was voted by the General Assembly of New Hampshire, "that Mr. George Libby be Commissary to go with the forces that go from this Province on y^e Expedition agst Louisburg * * * & have four pound ten shilling pr month for his wages." It appears that he refused to go "for the allowance made him by the Gen^l Assembly." He was auditor of Portsmouth 1748. He was a member of the "Church of Christ." He died between Oct. 1759, and Dec. 1760. His wife outlived him.

Their children were:

- 1 George, bap. May 1747; m. 9 Oct. 1776, Mary Lunt, sister of his cousin Jeremiah's wife. He was a merchant in Portsmouth and an inn-holder in Greenland. He died Oct. 1796, leaving a good property, but no children. His widow married, 27 Jan. 1799, Benjamin Brown, Esq., of Chester.
- 2 William, bap. 25 Dec. 1748; died young.
- 3 Elizabeth, bap. 11 Feb. 1749-50; died young.
- 4 Jaue, m. John Fisk Osgood of Boston.

1-7-6

THEODORE LIBBY, born in Portsmouth, 10 Dec. 1726. Nothing is known of him except that, 11 March 1757, he was chosen clerk of "Lt. Young's company." He was not living when his father made his will, Dec. 1760. It is probable he died in the service.

His children were:

- 1 Paul, bap. 17 June 1750; died young.

SAMUEL LIBBY, born in Rye, N. H., 9 Feb. 1720; married first, 4 Dec. 1744, in Rye, ABIGAIL SYMMES; second, before 1759, PENELOPE (HUNTINGDON) BARBER. The first husband of the last wife had been carried off by the Indians, and was supposed to be dead, but after seven years he returned home and found his wife married. The two husbands gave the wife her choice: she chose her second husband, and Barber went off.

Upon his marriage, Samuel Libby probably settled in Epsom, where he already owned land. In Epsom he took an important part in the management of the town, serving repeatedly as selectman, town clerk, and in other offices. The last mention of his name in the Epsom town records is as selectman in 1763, and he doubtless left town immediately. He appeared in Machias, Me., in 1768, and lived there until after the Revolution. He then lived a short time at a place called Carleton's Streams, and finally went with his sons to St. Stephen, N. B., where he died of small pox some time after 27 Sept. 1791.

Children, probably all born in Epsom; by first wife:

- 1 Sarah, bap. 1745; probably died young.

Joseph Libby's only child was:

He was a farmer. He lived in his native town until 1778, and

When his grand-daughter, Nabby Hill, was married, he went to live with her, in Alexandria, and there died, at an advanced age. His wife outlived him several years.

He was a farmer in Rye until the death of his brother Joseph, when he administered upon his estate, and from that time run the tavern himself. It stood on the north side of the road from Rye Center to Breakfast Hill. It was burnt down one night and he did not rebuild it, but, in 1789, which was probably immediately afterward, removed to Chester, where he died 3 Aug. 1799. He was a sergeant in Capt. Joseph Parson's company of state troops in the Revolution, and later was on the town committee to hire men for the Continental army. After his death, his widow lived with her son Joseph, in Gilford, until 1833 or 4, when she went to live with her daughter Fogg, in North Sandwich, N. H., and there died, 3 June 1836, aged nearly 93.

10-1-5

TIMOTHY LIBBY, born about 1724, in that part of Kittery, Me., which is now Eliot; married 9 Oct. 1746, SARAH STONE of Scarborough.

He was carried by his father to Scarborough when a child. He grew up and settled on a farm near Scottow's Hill, where all his children were born. In 1763 he became one of the first settlers of Machias. The following narrative of the cause of the settlement of Machias is given by Henry A. Libby of Machiasport, 10-1-5-5-3-3. It differs from published accounts, yet, although it may be incorrect in some of its details, it is probably a substantially correct account of the discovery of Machias by those Scarborough people who formed the first permanent settlement there.

Speaking of his grandfather, he says: He told me one day when I was at work with him (I was quite small) how his father came to settle in Machias. When he lived in Scarborough it was his practice in the winter to go east in a small vessel on a sealing voyage. It was on a return voyage, some hundred and fifteen or twenty years ago, that he encountered a gale and storm and tried to make what is now called Cutler Harbor. He made a mistake in the headland, ran ashore in a small cove, and lost his vessel and cargo. Then he had to get home in his small boat. In following along the coast, as was necessary for him to do, he rowed into Machias River. Struck with its beauty, he followed it to its head. Here he found the natural facilities so good that he determined to make it his future home. He returned to Scarborough, . . . and the next spring, taking his own family, and getting some eight or ten families more, they moved to their new abode.

He received, as one of the original settlers, a seven-acre lot, where the village of Machias now stands. Here he made his residence, and a few years later, (previous to June 1766), died. His widow improved this land until near the close of her life, and then all but her dower was sold to John Underwood. She was living as late as Nov. 1787.

The children of Timothy Libby were:

- 1 Sarah, bap. 27 Dec. 1747; m. 30 Sept. 1767, John Berry of Machias.
- 2 Esther, bap. 4 June 1749; m. Jonathan Piner of Machias.
- 3 Timothy, bap. 6 Jan. 1751; m. Martha Holmes. He was a farmer, and lived on the southern side of Pleasant Point. He died in 1785. His widow married — Richardson, and moved west. Only child:
 - 1 Sarah, b. 1781; either died in childhood or went west with her mother.
- 4 Mary, bap. 22 April 1753; m. Amos Boynton of Machias.
- 5 David, b. 31 Aug. 1755; m. Abigail Fitts.
- 6 Obadiah, bap. 15 Jan. 1758; m. Mary Hill.

CAPT. DAVID LIBBY, born in Kittery, now Eliot, Me., about 1727; married first, 13 Dec. 1750, DORCAS MEANS; she died, and he married second, in April, 1766, the widow JOANNA (JOSE) PAGE, daughter of Martin and Mercy Jose of Scarborough.

David Libby early adopted the following of the sea, and became captain of a coaster. During the French war he was engaged in transporting supplies to the garrison at Black Point. He bought a lot at Blue Point, and built him a house there. He sold this property in December, 1762, and was one of the company who formed the first settlement at Machias, in 1763. He did not stay there long. In June, 1768, he sold his seven-acre home lot to Samuel Libby, 6-6-1, and soon after removed to Providence, R. I., where he resided during the Revolution, and some years after. In his old age he and his wife returned to Maine. She died near the home of her childhood. After her death, her husband led an unsettled, homeless life, stopping here and there in the neighborhood of Scarborough. The time and place of his death are unknown.

His children, by his first wife, were:

- 1 Jane, bap. 16 Feb. 1752; m. Benjamin Rice of Scarborough Corner
- 2 George, bap. 30 Sept. 1753; probably died young.
- 3 Joseph, bap. 8 Feb. 1756; probably died young.

- 7 David, b. 1770; m. Elizabeth McKenney.
- 8 Hannah,* married in Providence.
- 9 Nancy,* married in Providence.
- 10 Lucy,* married in Providence. It was probably she that married James Franklin in Providence, 6 May 1804.

Col. Samuel March came to Scarborough where his uncle, Dea. Samuel Small was living, and continued his residence there until his death. He was by trade a cordwainer, but early dropped that occupation. He kept the tavern east of Oak Hill, since known as the "Sweetsir place." He was for many years one of the leading men of the town. He repeatedly filled the most important town offices; was for many years a deputy sheriff for Cumberland County; and was a lieutenant-colonel in the Revolution. He died 30 Oct. 1804. PETER LIBBY, born in Scarborough, 8 March 1736; married 5 Aug. 1760, RUTH LIBBY, 1-1-5-3; she died, and was buried 7 Aug. 1771. He married second, ANNA LAZZEL, of Kennebunk.

Peter Libby, when he was first married, lived on the farm on Pleasant Hill, which afterward became the homestead of Daniel Libby, 11-7-7. There his oldest son was born. He afterward lived on the farm now occupied by Charles Robinson, and moved thence to Beech Ridge, where he settled on the farm now owned by Mr. Clough. There he died 7 Nov. 1822. He was a man of firm, decisive character. He was in town business considerably; was selectman 1774, 5, 6, 1781, and from 1791 to 1799.

His widow died in Gardiner about 1830. Her sons all died of excessive bleeding. Old people still shake their heads solemnly and say, "They were under a curse." The dim tradition is that some man, on shipboard, the subject of some grievous injury at the hands of a Lazzel, in his last moments called down a curse upon him, that all his male descendants for a number of generations, should bleed to death. And the old people add, "It certainly came true in this family."

The children of Peter Libby, by his first wife, were:

- 1 Francis, b. 17 March 1761; m. 1st, Lucy Moulton; 2d, Dorcas (Plummer) Higgins.

Matthew Simonton of Cape Elizabeth; she died ten or twelve years later, and he married his third wife, the widow Sarah Warren, 3 Dec. 1813, and died in about a year. His widow returned to Saco.

Before he was married he settled on Beech Ridge, in the second parish of Scarborough. There he built a house, and cleared a farm, and thither, later, he took his wife. He afterward built the house now standing, about two rods west of the old one. There he lived until his death. He was an enrolling officer during the Revolution, and was for many years a deputy sheriff for Cumberland County. He was of an accumulative turn, and amassed a considerable property. He had no children, and made an heir of his sister's son, Richard Mitchell, whose grandson, Wm. H. Mitchell, now occupies the homestead.

The following story shows something of his character: He and his two brothers were all powerful wrestlers, but Peter was the smartest. One day at a raising, Peter had "cleared the ring." No one appearing to give him further trial, he called out to his brother, "Come, brother Dick, don't you want to take a fall?" Richard accepted the challenge, and, by a lucky movement, threw his brother. From that day forth he never wearied of saying, "I threw Peter, the last time we wrestled," but he could never be persuaded to give his brother an opportunity to regain his leadership.

was chosen the first deacon. Afterward he was continually called upon to perform funeral services, and in that capacity and many other kindnesses, to which his earnest christian spirit prompted him, he won the love of all about him. He grew up a farmer, and settled on part of the homestead of his wife's father. One day in September, 1773, he and other young men had been down to the seashore on horseback, and on the return, near the house of Major Josiah Libby, 1-1-6-4, he was thrown from his horse, and dislocated his neck. He was taken into Josiah Libby's house, and a physician called, who, as it proved, did not know enough to set it. The unfortunate man lived a number of days in great agony, and died 11 Sept. 1773, of strangulation.

The regular physician of the place, Doctor Deguio, (who used to say, "My father was one French gentleman, and my mother was one Indian squaw"), was away at the time of the accident, but returned almost immediately after death had taken place. He was in a towering passion at the ignorance which had caused the loss of a promising young man. "Look here," he said, and in a second the dislocated neck was replaced. He then dislocated and replaced it again and again, as fast as he could move his hands, raging all the while, until he had exhausted his indignation. Probably not one of the witnesses ever forgot that lesson.

The widow married, 12 Sept. 1775, Allison Libby, 10-5-4, and took her children into his family.

They were :

West Point, Nov. 30th, 1779.

A Dream.

Dreamed on the 28th instant, at night, that I was at home, in the West Room, to-bed with my brother Daniel, and thought I saw Death come into the door, in likeness to a Negro Boy—his visage very ghostly and frightful—and approach the bed where we were, with a scythe in his hand. My brother starting out of bed, I thought he struck him with the scythe, and seemed to cut him into two pieces, and I saw no more of him, but awoke, and behold, it was a dream!

Daniel Libby was one of the earliest settlers of Gray, removing thither probably in 1764. As his wife used to say, there was at that time "not a piece of mowing-field big enough for her to spread her apron on." For a period their provisions had to be all carried from Falmouth, and he used to earn money by working in Falmouth, until his lands became productive. He bought a great deal of wild land, from which he afterward gave each of his sons a farm. He gave to the town the lot on which are now the cemetery and town-house. His house, where were held the town meetings for some time, was where that of the widow of Edward Maybury now is. In 1778, New Boston, as the place was then called, was incorporated as the town of Gray, and in that year and several following years, Daniel Libby served as selectman. CAPT. REUBEN LIBBY, born in Rye, N. H., in 1743; married first, in Wolfborough, SARAH FULLERTON; (died 10 Feb. 1801); second, Jan. 1804, ABIGAIL (PINKHAM) SMITH, dau. of Abijah and Rachel (Stokes) Pinkham of Durham.

At the age of sixteen, he enlisted in the English army, and, it is said, was present at Crown Point when George III. was crowned king of England. After two years he returned home. The township of Wolfborough had then been surveyed, and the proprietors, who lived at Portsmouth, offered a hundred-acre lot each, with choice of lots, to the first two settlers. Reuben Libby and — Blake accepted the offer about 1762, and went across the lake in a canoe to Wolfborough Neck. The following year they made quite a clearing, and other settlers began to come in. His marriage, about 1766, was the first in town. They were married under an oak tree on the shore of the lake, near where Southbridge Village now is. He settled at first on Wolfborough Neck. He afterward removed to a farm on the main road, but died on the Neck, having moved back onto another farm, 9 March 1827. He was the first militia captain in Wolfborough, first represented the town in the state legislature, and was deputy sheriff more than twenty years. His widow died in Methuen, Mass., Sept. 1852.

CAPT. LUTHER LIBBY, born in Hampden, Me., 21 Aug. 1806; married, 10 Jan. 1833, ELIZABETH CRUMP, born 28 Aug. 1815, in Richmond, Va.

He went to sea soon after his father settled in Virginia, and followed that calling seventeen years. He then engaged in business as ship chandler and commission merchant and was for many years one of the leading business men of Richmond. His connection with the famous Libby Prison may be well given in the words of his son.

“My father was engaged in the business of ship chandler, grocer, and commission merchant, and had a lease on the building for three years. When the war broke out his business was suspended, as his whole trade was with the North, but he still retained possession of the building, and General Winder, who was in command of Richmond at that time, notified him that he desired the building for a prison and if his goods were not removed within a certain time, he would throw them into the street. Winder took forcible possession of the building, and converted it into a prison. The name was derived from the simple fact of the sign of Libby & Son remaining over the door.”

ABRAHAM LIBBY, born in Saco, Me., 2 March 1808; married, HANNAH E. HANCOCK, daughter of John Lane and Hannah (Prescott) Hancock of Buxton.

Upon his marriage he settled on a ten-acre lot near Portland, at what is now called Libby's Corner, and lived there until his death. The house was a very large one, and for some time he made a practice of putting up countrymen and their teams. He soon engaged in coopering, and later added the business of blacksmith and carriage maker. In addition to these he kept a general store. These buildings formed a line all along the road, and in 1844, fire catching in the cooper shop, all were burned. He rebuilt all but the cooperage, and continued in business as blacksmith and carriage maker until his death, 21 May 1855.

At the age of 18 he took charge of his father's grocery store, and a year later became bookkeeper for his uncle John L. Hancock, who was then in the beef packing business in what is now Deering. Upon his uncle's removal to the West, he continued the business for himself, but was not successful, and, following his uncle to Chicago, was for many years foreman for Cragin & Co., of which firm his uncle had become a member. After seven years, he himself, with a small capital, engaged in packing tongues. Later, A. McNeill and his own brother became his partners, and the business was extended. They used the firm name of A. A. Libby & Co. until 1874, when it was changed for the present one of Libby, McNeill & Libby. Adopting strict principles of fair dealing, the firm met with great success. In 1875 they added to their immense business in barreling beef, that of canning cooked corned beef, and in the latter form their production has won such a name that their exports of canned goods equal or exceed those of all other packers in this country. They now employ from 800 to 1400 men, and slaughter daily from 800 to 1200 head of cattle. Children:

STORER LIBBY, born in Scarborough, 3 Nov. 1802; married, 19 Aug. 1821, DOROTHY LANCASTER TOMPSON. [See page 75.]

After his mother's marriage to Parson Lancaster, he worked out farming in different places. He worked one year with his brother-in-law Berry, in Pownal, and one year with his brother-in-law Rice, then of Gorham. He worked two years for his father-in-law, and, in 1821, married his granddaughter. Two years after his marriage he removed to Pownal, and bought and cultivated a small place, occupying his spare time by butchering and marketing. In 1829 he returned to Scarborough, to again take charge of Parson Lancaster's farm, and on his death, two years later, bought out the other heirs. Thus the Lancaster place, on which his wife's grandfather had lived during a pastorate of more than fifty years, came into his hands, and on it he lived until his death, 7 March 1873. His widow still occupies his homestead.

He was bred a Democrat, and voted with that party until the rise of the Republican party, when he stopped voting entirely. His sentiments were those of the Republicans. Brought up in the days of New England rum, he was always a practicer of total abstinence. Though not a church-member, his household was filled with religious influences; the daily Bible reading was as regular as breakfast. His whole character may be seen in the epithet by which he was known at a period when nicknames were given to many in his locality—most of them derived from unfavorable peculiarities. His was "Old Silver Piece."

- 1 son, died at the age of ten days, in Scarborough.
- 2 Thomas Lancaster, b. 20 May 1824, in Pownal; m. Mary E. Batchelder.

Two and one-half years later he returned home, but immediately went back and took charge of the girl's school at the Wheelock missionary station. There he married one of the teachers and passed the rest of his life. Beside being steward, and having the chief care of the temporal affairs of the station, he was also superintendent of the Sabbath-school, leader of the prayer-meetings, and gradually became accustomed to conducting the church services. He at length became one of the elders of the church. (Presbyterian). At the time of the war he was unable to return north, and was obliged to serve as commissary in the Choctaw army. In this connection, and also in his business alone, after the dissolution of the partnership in 1858, he was very successful; but the depression of the value of real estate in which he had invested gave rise to embarrassments which contracted his business, and from which he has not yet (1881) recovered. In September following he passed his examination for admission to Harvard College. He learned the cooper's trade in North Yarmouth with Samuel Bacon, who afterward became his father-in-law, and worked at

*He was named by the compiler. It will be seen that his name, Foster Hodgkins Stimpson Libby, includes the surnames of his four grandparents; first the mother's name, then her mother's name, then the paternal grandmother's name, and then the surname. The plan, fully carried out, would demand that all this family should be distinguished from other families of Libbys by these three middle names, and that the different members of the family be distinguished from each other by christian names prefixed. Thus this family might have been: George F. H. S. Libby, Eleanor F. H. S. Libby, Lester F. H. S. Libby, and Elizabeth F. H. S. Libby. Such a method of naming, could it once become general, would make the genealogist's task an easy and sure one. Succeeding generations would thus preserve their pedigrees in their names. Some such method is more necessary for purposes of distinction to-day than was the optional use of middle names a half-century ago.

GENERAL INDEX.

In this index it has been purposed to spell each person's name as spelled by himself. When it is not known how any person spelled his name, (1) if all his near relatives used one spelling, the same is given to him; (2) if two or more ways occur among his near relatives, the most probable way is given, with an interrogation mark affixed.
